TV adaptations of stories and novellas from various 19th-century French authors.

Happiness in crime

As the daughter of the fencing master Stassin, the beautiful and seductive Claire is highly skilled with a sword. She is reputed to be a hot blooded, provocative girl, whose beauty is equalled only by her pride and determination. When the Comte de Savigny (who has recently married the sensitive Delphine) walks into the fencing hall one day and challenges Claire to a sword fight, the battle which begins is a most unusual one. At sword point, a burning passion quickly develops between these two diabolical lovers who have decided to let nothing stand in their way, including lies, treason and especially Delphine.

Directed by: Denis Malleval, 2009
Screenplay, adaptation and dialogue: Bruno Tardon, based on a work by Jules Barbey d'Aurevilly
With: Didier Bourdon (Doctor Crosnier), Grégori Derangère (Charles de Savigny), Marie Kremer (Claire Stassin), Gaëla Le Devehat (Delphine de Savigny), Evelyne Dandry (Hortense Coeurly), François-Régis Marchasson (Figon), Gilles Arbona (Benoît Stassin), Jérôme Le Paulmier (captain Gorius)

Cat's paw house

Mr. Guillaume is a Parisian draper with two daughters. The eldest, Virginie, is gentle and patient but slightly unattractive. Augustine, the younger of the two, is so charming that she has two prospective suitors: Joseph (Mr Guillaume's assistant) and Théodore de Sommervieux, a young art-loving aristocrat. Augustine bestows her affections on Théodore, while Joseph instead marries Virginie. But is this a marriage of passion for one of the girls and of common sense for the other? The results prove to be surprising because although Virginie and Joseph form a solid couple, Augustine's dream quickly becomes a nightmare.

Directed by: Jean-Daniel Verhaeghe, 2009
Screenplay, adaptation and dialogue: Anne Andréi, based on a work by Honoré de Balzac
With: Mélanie Bernier (Augustine), Raphaël Personnaz (Théodore de Sommervieux), Régis Laspalès (Mr Guillaume), Marie Vincent (Mrs Guillaume), Evelyne Bouix (Mrs Roguin), Françoise Gillard (Virginie), Marc Bodnar (Joseph Lebas) and Arielle Dombasle (the Duchess de Carigliano)

The kitty

A small group comprised of Champbourcy, his daughter Blanche, his sister Léonida, Cordenbois the chemist, Colladan the rich farmer and Félix the young notary, meet up regularly to play cards. At reckoning up time, when trying to decide what the winnings will be spent on, everyone agrees that a trip to Paris would be nice. At 6:25 AM, the whole group is preparing to take the train together to the capital, with their first port of call being the Cochon bleu in Montmartre at midday. This marks the start of an incredible adventure including chases, arrests, mistakes and misunderstandings all round.

It crosses the roof of the world, covering more than 4,000 winding kilometres, 20 mountain chains and two desert plateaus: it is the ancient tea route, which connects China to Europe, via Nepal, India, Persia, Mongolia and Russia...

On the roof of the world

Here we are on the route that leads to the roof of the world. And it's only now, on the bare Tibetan plateau that we can see how these adventurers organise themselves to meet the challenges imposed by this long and difficult route. We will taste their food, prepared in makeshift pans blackened by fire, visit caravanserais sheltering for the night and share their rest, most often under the stars. It's a journey that will take twelve months: six months out and another six months back, which certain caravanserai have made more than twenty times in their lives. But, we have arrived in Lhasa, the centre of Buddhism, as well as a trading post between China and India, as well as for all parts of the Himalayas. It's here that the horse trains from Yunnan stop, handing over their cargo of green gold Pu'er tea for carriage to India, Pakistan and other distant countries, to the farthest corners of the world...

14:30 PARIS, UNE HISTOIRE CAPITALE ST

In 4 parts, a history of the French capital from antiquity to the present day.

Paris, capital of revolutions

The Revolution, the Paris of Haussmann, the Commune... From Louis XVI to the end of the 19th century, Paris saw many tumultuous times. Symbols collapsed: the Bastille was reduced to rubble, city hall burned down and life changed. Baron Haussmann remodelled the capital, cut out major roads, constructed buildings...

The little old man from Batignolles

Godeuil, a young medical student, lives next door to Mr. Méchinet, a police investigator. When a former hairdresser, Mr. Pigareau, is murdered in Paris's Batignolles district, Godeuil and Méchinet team up to find the killer. A suspect has already been arrested: the hairdresser's nephew Monistrol. What's more, he has already confessed to the crime, seemingly named by the victim himself who tried to identify his murderer by scribbling the first letters of his name on the parquet floor in blood. Despite this, our intrepid duo are unconvinced of the nephew's guilt and decide to examine the case again right for the beginning.

Directed by: Claude Chabrol, 2009
Screenplay, adaptation and dialogue: Gérard Jourd'hui and Jacques Santamaria, based on a work by Emile Gaboriau
With: Pierre Arditi (Méchinet), Manuel Le Lièvre (Godeuil), Bernard Blancan (Monistrol), Isabelle Renauld (Mrs Monistrol), Sophie Artur (Mrs Méchinet), Jacques Boudet (Judge Boissec), Florent Gibassier (Goulard), Denis Verbecelte (officer Batignolles)
