05:00 CARNETS D'EXPÉDITION

The Pacific, the homeland of the Moai

Francis Le Guen's team navigates the different islands in the Marquise archipelago to find out more about Polynesian culture and, sure enough, each island offers a fascinating new insight. At Hiva Hoa, we learn about the earliest inhabitants of these islands by exploring an undersea site and its mysterious engravings. At Nuku Hiva, after diving with electra dolphins, we venture deep into the heart of the island to discover the sacred stone 'tiki' statues that help us to understand the notion of 'tapu', from which we have derived the word taboo. This understanding becomes even more poignant after a visit to the island of Ua Huka with its two offshore islets teeming with birds. This is a place where all human presence is forbidden and is a powerful reminder of certain legends such as the Easter Island Birdman cult. Finally, at Ua Pou, we meet the archaeologist Pierre Ottino who unearths new clues every day at his excavation site and allows us to make the great leap across the ocean to the Tonga trench.

15:16 TRÉSORS DE CIVILISATION

A number of major civilisations have flourished in Europe over the centuries, leaving behind a wealth of architectural wonders.

In the heart of Habsburg country

The city of Vienna grew out of a number of initial Celtic and Roman settlements, emerging as a mediaeval and later a baroque city before becoming the capital of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. It has also played a key role in the history of European music. Vienna's historical city centre is home to an impressive variety of architectural attractions, including its baroque palaces and gardens in addition to the Ringstrasse dating from the late 19th century. The Palace of Schönbrunn and its gardens include numerous masterpieces of decorative art. Here, the baroque style blends in with the general architectural feel of the building while rococo really comes into its own in the palace's indoor decorative scheme. Budapest is a combination of three cities in one: the former Roman colony of Obuda, the mediaeval city of Buda and the industrial and commercial area of Pest, all of which were joined together in 1873 to create one of the world's finest urban environments. Finally, Salzburg has succeeded in preserving its outstanding urban fabric, built between the Middle Ages and the 19th century.

Siberia, soldiers of fire

In Siberia, the taiga seems to roll on endlessly. Each summer since 1931, Irkutsk's smokejumpers are assigned the mission of fighting fires over a vast expanse, from the Arctic tundra to the Mongolian frontier. Only for them, the blaze could quickly spread out of control over thousands of hectares.

Castles in Alsace, Basque treasures

Built on rocky spurs, in the heart of wild countryside, ten or so fortresses dominate the plains of Alsace. But most of them are in ruins. Only Haut-Koenigsbourg castle, which was restored in the 20th century, bears witness to this exceptional architecture. Fortunately, several donors have undertaken to preserve Alsace's heritage. At the other end of France: the Basque country. At the start of the 20th century, the Atlantic Coast became the showcase of a style that overtook the whole of Europe: Art Deco. In Biarritz and in all of the coast's seaside resorts, architects tried to out do each other in imaginative terms to build houses that were each more surprising than the next.

The film is set in modern day Chad. Adam is about sixty years old. A former swimming champion he now works as a lifeguard at a luxury hotel in N'Djamena. When the hotel is bought out by a Chinese company, he has to give up his job to his son, Abdel. He is very unhappy about this situation, which he considers as social decline. The background to the film is the civil war, with armed rebels threatening the authorities in power. In reaction to this situation the government calls on the population to make a "war effort", demanding money from them or a child old enough to fight. So Adam is hounded by his district chief to provide his contribution. But Adam has no money, he only has his son...

Siberia, soldiers of fire

In Siberia, the taiga seems to roll on endlessly. Each summer since 1931, Irkutsk's smokejumpers are assigned the mission of fighting fires over a vast expanse, from the Arctic tundra to the Mongolian frontier. Only for them, the blaze could quickly spread out of control over thousands of hectares.
