01:03 PARIS, UNE HISTOIRE CAPITALE ST

In 4 parts, a history of the French capital from antiquity to the present day.

Paris, royal capital

From the 13th century, Paris underwent an architectural revolution marked by the construction of emblematic monuments. Philippe-Auguste was one of the first sovereigns to be concerned about urban development: he had the streets paved and moved into the Louvre. The construction of Notre-Dame began in 1163, and Sainte-Chapelle in 1242...

00:01 LES PETITS MEURTRES D'AGATHA CHRISTIE ST

Televised adaptations of Agatha Christie's great classics.

Peril at End House

The scene is the summer of 1936 and Jo, a young and attractive designer, has invited her family and friends to spend the summer in her superb home. Jo becomes the target of a mysterious killer and after having escaped several attempts on her life she finally asks Captain Larosière to protect her. Not only does Larosière readily accept, but he also falls head over heels in love with the woman into the bargain. For his part, Lampion manages to get himself hired as a domestic in the designer's home in order to carry out his own undercover investigation. The killer remains at large but during the July 14th celebrations, Jo's cousin is accidentally killed by gunshot through the heart.

Directed by: Eric Woreth, 2009, based on the novel "Peril at End House" by Agatha Christie
The characters of Larosière and Lampion were created by Anne Giafferi and Murielle Magellan
Screenplay, adaptation and dialogue: Thierry Debroux
With: Antoine Duléry (Captain Larosière), Marius Colucci (Inspector Lampion), Elsa Kikoïne (Jo), Gilian Petrovski (Abel), Juliette Coulon (Suzanne), and Eric Naggar (Paul)
Genre: Crime drama
